Florida CNA license renewal

Your Florida CNA license is good for 2 years. The Board of Nursing sends out renewal letters to your last known address. It is your responsibility to keep your address current with the Nursing Assistant Registry. FMES will report credits to CEBroker, the state's auditing system.

Check your license, some CNAs will expire 5/31/2020.

If you did not renew your license during the last renewal, it will become delinquent and you will be required to pay a delinquent fee of $50, in addition to the renewal fee. If renewing 120 day Notified Delinquent, your fees will be $160.

Frequently asked questions:

How many hours do I need to renew my CNA license?

Each certified nursing assistant must complete a minimum of 24 hours of in-service training each license cycle. A license cycle is 2 years. For new candidates certified during the year, the minimum in-service hours required shall be prorated at the rate of 1.0 hours per month from the month of initial certification to the end of the calendar year.

All Florida CNA licenses are now expiring May 31st. The Board of Nursing has moved the license expiration month from December to May.

The CNA Registry under the Florida Board of Nursing only requires a TOTAL of 24 hours of ceu's for license renewal.

Once you renew for the first time with the expiration of May 31st the license cycle starts over. You will need 24 hours again.

Contact hours = hours of in-service = continuing education = ceu's = credits = all the same meaning.

In addition, the Agency for Healthcare Administration and the Department of Elderly Affairs have specific in-service requirements for CNAs who work in certain facilities or agencies.

Did I have to work as a CNA at anytime?

In order to renew the CNA license at the end of the two year renewal cycle, CNAs are required to perform nursing-related services for monetary compensation within the last 24 consecutive months in order to remain on the registry.

Licensees who fail to meet these requirements must reapply for licensure and comply with current laws and rules. Licensees who have become Null and Void or elected to Voluntary Relinquish their CNA license, must reapply for licensure and meet current requirements.

Where do I go to renew my license?

Renew your Florida CNA license here.

How long will it take to get my renewal license in the mail?

The process of renewing a license and receiving a printed license in the mail may take 7-10 business days. Initiating contact to confirm the receipt of fees or the status of your license prior to this time will not expedite the renewal process.

How long should I store my continuing education certificates?

A certified nursing assistant must retain in-service compliance records for a period of 4 years and submit records to the Board if required for auditing. FMES will keep a record of your in-service hours, that are completed on our website, for 4 years.

Where do I go to transfer my CNA license to Florida?

Nursing assistants certified out-of-state wishing to transfer their certification to Florida may apply for reciprocity.

• You may transfer your CNA certificate from another state to Florida if the certificate is still active and has not expired or lapsed. You are not required to take the state exam.
• Your certificate must be in good standing with the other state and you will be required to have a background check (FBI).
• The FBI background check will take approximately 6-8 weeks but delays of several months are not uncommon. You are encouraged to apply early.
• You will receive a Florida CNA certificate after your out-of-state certificate has been verified in good standing and your FBI background has been cleared.
